1

Local post ideas that get calls

"Act as a marketing strategist. My business is [what you do] in [city]. Give me 10 post ideas that would make a local customer stop scrolling and call me today."

2

Google Business Profile posts

"Write 5 Google Business Profile posts for my [trade] business. Each under 1,500 characters, friendly, and ending with a clear call to action."

Win the "not yets"

3

Revive a lead who went quiet

"Here's a message from a lead who went quiet: [paste]. Write 3 friendly follow-ups that don't sound desperate and make it easy for them to say yes."

4

Turn a rough quote into a pro estimate

"Turn these rough notes into a clear, professional estimate a customer will trust and understand: [paste the job + price]."

More 5-stars, less stress

5

Ask for a review (without being awkward)

"Write a short, warm text asking a happy customer for a Google review – plus a softer version for the ones I have to nudge a second time."

6

Reply to a bad review, calmly

"A customer left this negative review: [paste]. Write a calm, professional public reply that protects my reputation and offers to make it right."

Stop doing it the slow way

7

Instant FAQ answers

"Write a clear, friendly answer to '[common question customers ask]' that I can copy onto my website or paste in a text."

8

Decode a long customer email

"Summarize this long customer email, tell me exactly what they need, and draft a reply I can send: [paste]."

Show up like the expert

9

A week of content from one idea

"Give me a week of social posts from this one idea: [idea]. Mix a quick tip, a question, and a behind-the-scenes – in a real, human voice."

10

Explain it like a neighbor would

"Explain [thing customers don't understand about my service] in plain English, like I'm talking to a neighbor over the fence."

That's hours back in your week — for free.

I share one practical AI, automation, or marketing tip like these every single day. No hype. Just what actually works for small businesses.
